

ABOUT

Deliberations (Or Deciding A Verdict)

After the facts of a case have been presented by each party the jury is sent to a jury room to decide the verdict. Inside the jury room the jury members will select a foreperson whose job it is to collect ballots and to announce the verdict when asked to do so by the judge. All jurors are individually independent and equal. No one juror has more "weight" or power than any other juror.

In reaching a decision jurors must remember to:

- keep an open mind;
- discuss the facts of the case by sharing information and points of view;
- apply "jury instructions" appropriately;
- decide on a verdict that is based on the facts of a case as they were presented inside the courtroom.
